

Neurons are simulated. Each spike is queued for transmission over the network.

“Spike” packets are received. Synaptic weights and delays are looked up and fed into ring buffers to form neuron input.

Neurons are simulated. Spikes are immediately decoded to form a vector representation of neural activity.

